

Mission & Purpose

McElveen Library provides access to knowledge and information essential to accomplish the Air Force mission; support professional military and voluntary off-duty education programs; and offer library facilities, resources and services which meet the personal needs and promote the productive use of leisure time for Air Force people.

Additionally, McElveen Library seeks to provide quality service to all patrons. Its goal is to provide a safe, studious and pleasant environment conducive to life-long learning.

The library opened in its present location in April 2007 and is named in honor of former Sumter mayor, W.A. McElveen, Jr. Mr. McElveen is an unassuming patriotic citizen, having had extensive influence on the men and women of Shaw AFB. Nothing can compare to the hours and honor he has personally given Shaw AFB nor to his love of history and the "Shaw Field" he watched being constructed as a teenager.
